items. Costco, Walmart, Target, and Sam's Club all informally have the same report. No issues anticipated at the moment.

California Governor's Office of Business & Economic Development

- The economic impacts from the virus are viewed as temporary disruption as opposed to long-term impact. We continue to work closely with our partners across the state, and around the globe, to monitor ongoing issues. GO-Biz is sharing all reports of impact directly with DOF for better coordination on economic impact messaging.

Overall Economic Impact

- Companies are facing large numbers of cancellations to their conferences.
- There are reports of companies issuing internal guidance to avoid all unnecessary travel, both international and US.

Trade/Freight Impact

- Global trade is hurting and the nation's busiest ports are being impacted due to the Coronavirus.
- There are less hours available for dockworkers, less cargo for truckers. Dockworkers and office workers part of the labor union are starting to dip into a "pay guarantee program" whereby if business goes below a certain level, industry pays workers even if they're not coming to work.
- Coronavirus comes during continued fallout from the trade war. We still have tariffs on approximately $376 billion worth of imports, increasing annual consumer costs by $77.9 billion. The coronavirus has put any potential benefit from the Phase 1 deal on hold.

Tourism

- Visit California shares that the virus will cause a short-term reduction in visitation: a 27 percent decline in tourism from China in 2020 is expected.
- China is a critical market to tourism in California. Although it is too early to predict specifics, China will remain California's top overseas visitor market and a priority for Visit California's marketing efforts despite coronavirus impacts.
